Mirvana Hotels develops its sustainability-focused practices by prioritizing guest comfort and environmental consciousness

By using efficient lighting, plastic consumption is reduced by 20% compared to 50 ml single-use bottles. For soap dispensation, liquid soaps are preferred considering the environmental impact, thus prioritizing sustainability and waste reduction.

To make guests reduce their environmental impact, "Green Key" door cards are placed in the rooms. Guests who opt-in use this card to request refreshments from daily cleaning standards, promptly reach out to housekeeping staff on the floor. This promotes water, detergent, and energy savings while encouraging guests to maximize their environmental awareness. Guests contributing in this way can enjoy special benefits offered by hotel management.

Guests are given the option to control water and detergent consumption by determining the frequency of changing their sheets. They can communicate this preference to their personal assistant, thereby contributing to the preservation of nature.

It is recommended that towels intended for reuse be hung, while those not intended for use be left on the bathroom or room floor. This simple step helps prevent unnecessary water and detergent consumption.

Printed materials in guest rooms are minimized to ensure paper conservation. Information on room services, menus, event details, golf maps, and special events such as dinners, theatre, and fitness through a provided QR code is used instead of brochures.

Waste generated in guest rooms are separated for recycling. The waste coffee filter is connected into electricity through biogas conversion, while aluminum parts are recycled. In this context, collaboration with the green support and training partners.

To preserve the freshness of the fruits and prevent waste, fruit request cards are sent to guests who stay regularly at the facility. This practice helps prevent waste and ensure efficient use of resources.

These practices represent just a few of the important steps Mirvana Hotels takes to share its environmental protection and sustainability approach with its guests, contributing to a better world.
